Why are there Diploma Mills?
1. Supply and Demand

- Competitive domestic and global job market encourages more job applicants to get degrees from diploma mills without having to attend any classes and complete coursework.

- Qualifying for state and federal government jobs in the U.S., pay rankings and raises require college degrees and higher positions required advanced degrees such as Master’s and Doctorates.
2. Limited/No Regulation

- Absence of regulation on a federal level and lax or no regulation at the state levels.
- The USDOE does not have direct power to regulate educational institutions and the quality of their degrees.
- No federal law that directly classifies diploma mill operations or someone obtaining such a degree as illegal.
- Loop holes that allow a diploma mill to operate as a tax-exempt religious institution without accreditation by one of the recognized accreditation boards.
- The term “university” is not legally protected on a national level.

Media and Law Enforcement

Media
- Platform for diploma mills to advertise
- Indifference & lack investigative reporting

Law Enforcement
- Diploma mills are not a priority
- Lawmakers show zero interest
- Even when action is taken it is too little and too late
- Absence of regulation and laws doesn’t help

What to look for

- Website
- Accreditation/Recognition
- Name and Address
- Admission criteria/coursework
- Tuition and Fees
Websites

- Poorly designed websites
- Cluttered with ads by other online vendors
- Shares IP & physical addresses as other bogus universities (means they are hosted on the same server, operated by the same person or group of people)
- The “school’s” website either lists no faculty or lists faculty who have attended school accredited by bogus schools

All Study programs at ABMS - The Open University Of Switzerland
We have 4 intakes per year: January, April, July, and October

Our management study programs:
Accreditation/Recognition

- Claims accreditation with several accrediting agencies to sound impressive
- Lists accreditation by accreditors that are not recognized by the U.S. Department of Education
- Implies official approval by mentioning state registration or licensing
- The accreditation it claims is with a board that has the same address as the diploma mill
- Claims accreditation by a so-called accreditation body in another country or micro-nation other than the country where it is based or registered to operate
Religious Recognition

ABMS is one and only independent university to be approved from
- The Education Committee of the Church
- Federation of the Universities of the Islamic World which is part of the Islamic Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization - UNESCO

Worldwide 55% of the population are either Christians or Muslims, therefore we have focused to have the Religious Recognition from both.
ABMS is not a religion based organization, however we believe the Religious Recognition is sometimes an important fact for students in some countries to find better jobs.

Accreditations

ASIC - Accreditation Service for International Colleges & Universities

What can we do?
Advice: Actions to take in-house

- Don’t post photos/images of your degrees and transcripts on your online store
- Stay vigilant and monitor your brand online (do regular sweeps on the Internet)
- Take legal action for trade mark or copyright infringements
- Have a published policy on degree and transcript fraud
- Discourage students from posting their degree/diplomas and transcripts on social media
- Share fraudulent documents with colleagues
- Archive documents determined to have been from diploma mills/falsified (keep records)
Advice: Report Fraud

Federal Trade Commission (FCC)

- File a fraud/scam report https://www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov/#crnt&panel1-1

- Pressure the Federal Trade Commission to act on its 1998 ruling that regulates the use of the word “accredited,” and to enforce it against those that are not;

State Representatives

- Alert state representatives and the media when a legitimate school finds its name maligned by a bogus schools

- Work together for the passage of meaningful legislation and the enforcement of existing laws
Advice: Alert Media

Media

- Alert media when a legitimate school finds its name maligned by a bogus school
- Boycott advertising or threaten not to advertise in print or online media where bogus schools are also advertising
- Take action by notifying the editor, publisher or Internet site provider of magazines, publications and websites in which bogus school advertise and inform federal, state and local authorities
- Educate the public through media
Advice: Unite Against Fraud!

- Support the formation of a consortium of legitimate universities, businesses and non-profits to work together tackling educational fraud.

- The Association of International Credential Evaluators (AICE) has a system in place for archiving and reporting credentials fraud. School representatives may join AICE as Affiliate Members. www.aice-eval.org

- Institutional legitimacy is tracked in the GRADE Database™, where users can access data and report fraud. As of July 2016, GRADE™ includes profiles for over 1,300 unrecognized, substandard and fraudulent institutions. www.gradedatabase.com
