The Universe at Hand

Greetings from ACEI,

We hope our April Newsletter finds you well and safe. During these challenging times, ACEI is making a dedicated commitment to responding to the needs of our clients and applicants by providing services to ensure the best delivery method of student data while ensuring the health and safety of our team. ACEI is fully operational, and clients and institutions may reach us by phone, email, post and even our online chat on our website. We strongly advise our institutional and organizational clients to take advantage of ACEI's SecurePathway®, a proprietary secure platform to directly access, view and print completed evaluation reports online instantly with a unique account ID and password. Signing up with ACEI's SecurePathway is free.

We have also been offering a series of free webinars, Mindful Minutes with ACEI, to provide our international education community a safe platform to learn from peers and professionals on coping techniques during times of crisis. You may access the recordings of these webinars via these links and passwords by clicking here and scrolling down to Presentations.

In addition, we continue to provide informative stories and opinions on our weekly blog and bring to you a collection of articles on domestic and international education and related news in our monthly Newsletter, The Report. Subscription to The Report is free.

Finally, on June 10th, we will be hosting a free webinar on "How to Spot Fake Online Programs." ACEI President & CEO, Jasmin Saidi-Kuehnert will be joined by Allen Ezell, retired FBI Special Agent who has been indefatigable in his fight to expose diploma mills. You'll find the latest contribution Allen has written for ACEI's blog in this Newsletter. We hope you will join us for what we predict will be an eye-opening webinar on the continuous proliferation of diploma mills and fake online programs especially now during this time where more institutions are embracing online instructions.

How Can Universities Shape a post-COVID World?

“The world will never be the same again.” This is perhaps the least hazardous prediction one can make about the consequence of the COVID-19 crisis. This crisis will surely change all societal institutions, not just the healthcare sector. The precise nature of that change is, at this time, unknowable. To read more, click here.

International Students' Perspectives on Online Education

“The benefit of everyday college is you have a schedule. It teaches you discipline.” says Colorado State University student Shamsar Singh. What happens now that everything is online? To read more, click here.

The Future of International Education in a Post-Mobility World

Student mobility was an outdated approach to international education even before the current pandemic. In future, universities must ensure that internationalization is no longer dominated by mobility, without which it becomes more accessible, more environmentally sustainable and less likely to cause brain drain.
